Foundation / init

Article

init

Returns an initialized NSOperation object.

Overview

Your custom subclasses must call this method. The default implementation initializes the object's instance variables and prepares it for use. This method runs on the current thread—that is, the thread you use to allocate the operation object.

See Also

Related Documentation

Concurrency Programming Guide